Hello kids, We are going to learn Direct and Indirect Speech for class 6. What about its Definition, Examples, and Exercise For for class 6? Here we have given CBSE English Grammar Direct and Indirect Speech for class 6. Let us start with Direct speech and understand both types of speech separately. What is Direct Speech? Definition: In this form of speech, the sentences are framed by the words that are spoken by the speaker, there is no change in the words exactly the same words are being reported in the sentence. The words spoken by the speaker are put into quotation marks or in double inverted commas (" "). In other words, when we repeat the words of the speaker it is said to be direct speech. Examples of Direct Speech For Class 6He said, "I will go to Mumbai tomorrow." Satyam said, "I will be there at 2 pm." Sheela conveyed, "I am going out today." "I had a pain in my stomach yesterday." "Where do you stay?" "From the above examples, it can be figured out that the words are exactly reported by another person hence they are said to be direct speech. What is Indirect Speech? Definition: In indirect narration, the sentences are designed in such a type, the words that are used by the person are not exactly the same as the speaker said or conveyed. Indirect speech is also known as reported speech. It generally talks about the past. Examples of Indirect speech For Class 6 Ram said that he had bought a new car. She said that she will not come to the party. He said that he is living in France. Gargi said that she need help with her homework. She said that she had been waiting for Ram for an hour. In the above examples, it can be noticed that the words are not exactly the same as the speaker said, hence they fall in the category of indirect speech. Rules For Changing Direct Speech into Indirect SpeechLet us learn some of the rules for changing direct speech into indirect speech for different tenses. 1. No changes in the tense are made if: Reporting verb is in the present tense. If the reported words are true at the time of reporting. If reported speech reports universal truth.
